

Hillside Boylston's Multi-Use Open Space and Recreation area

Hillside is a 292 acre parcel that is not only the home to the Municipal Offices and Police Department, but an outdoor playground for the residents of the town to enjoy. There are trails open to hiking, cross-country skiing, bikes and horse back riding. Multiple sports fields are used by a large number of kids in youth sports organizations. A gym is open to adults and kids for a variety of uses. The Parks & Recreation Committee along with cooperation from the Selectmen and Highway department built the fabulous playground, pavillion and concession stand near the Soccer fields for the Boylston Residents.

The property includes buildings with historical significance. The Gough House was built in 1848 by John B Gough, Temperance leader. In 1975, the house was placed on the National Register of Historical Sites. Elmwood, also know as the Flagg house was built in 1800.

Elmwood is now home to the Sybil H Fuller Children's Center run by YOU, Inc. Visit their website to educate yourself on the services provided by YOU, Inc.
